

ABOUT THE EDITOR

Edwin R. Gerler, Jr., EdD, is Professor and Director of Counselor Education Graduate Programs in the Department of Educational Research, Leadership, and Counselor Education at North Carolina State University in Raleigh. He earned a BS in history and mathematics from Concordia College and an MS in counseling from Bucknell University. He obtained his doctorate in counselor education from Pennsylvania State University.

Dr. Gerler has received a number of awards for his teaching and publications, including the Joseph W. and Lucile U. Hillis Award for outstanding achievement in humanistic education and human development publications. He is author or co-author of a number of books, and he has published extensively in professional journals.